

Aviation Nation

Australia was world renowned for its pioneering achievements in aviation. We had high standards of attitude, skill, training and flight discipline. Aussie pilots were sought after. Australia was truly an aviation nation. We need to restore our standards and reputation for the sake of our international future. But this can only happen if the community in general, and the politicians and media in particular, support the efforts now being made by the aviation industry to regain lost ground.

Let's put Australia back on top - where it belongs.
